Energy Audit

Purpose

The purpose of this exercise is to help you become more aware of how your energy is used, impacted, and replenished in your day-to-day life. By identifying the moving pieces, we are then able to adjust for ideal personal sustainability.

Introduction

As human beings, we can acquire energy from four sources: physical, emotional, mental, and purpose. To counteract the effects of burnout or general feelings of overwhelm, we can begin to account for our energy, how we spend it, and how we renew it.

It is often not the amount of time we devote to something but the quality of energy we bring to it that has the greatest impact. By assessing how things fill or deplete us in each of these areas, we can take a more hands-on approach to our capacity and begin to create balance in our energy. In doing so, we're able to create an efficient lifestyle by making sure we're getting enough sustenance to fuel all our endeavors.

We'll begin by defining each energy dimension, beginning with the physical, which can be thought of as a foundation, and providing some examples of how you can begin working with each one.

Physical (the quantity)

Renewal is a critical need in this dimension, and it is often undervalued in modern organizations. Humans, unlike machines, are designed to pulse or move rhythmically between work and rest. Sleep, daytime rest, fitness, and nutrition are four critical behaviors that aid in renewal.

You can increase your daytime rest by taking short 5-10 minute breaks in between stretches of engagement; studies show that humans can best focus for 90-120 minutes at a time. Increase the quality of your sleep by turning off screens 20 minutes before bed, or improve your nutrition and lifestyle by increasing your steps and drinking more water throughout the day. Examine how minor changes affect your energy levels.

Energy Audit

Emotional (the quality)

Our emotions can have a big impact on our behavior. Performance and decision-making have been shown to be influenced by feelings of being loved and valued and experiencing deep satisfaction and enjoyment, along with a sense of safety and trust. These highly specific sets of feelings can be actively and consciously fostered. As we start to become more conscious of our current emotions, we begin to notice how our mood affects other facets of our existence.

Set aside time for the things you enjoy. As little as 5 minutes a day can make an impact. Reflect and foster an attitude of gratitude. Create boundaries around tasks that feel draining to you. Cultivate a supportive social circle.

Mental (the focus)

Today, focus and prioritization are a significant source of pain in our efficiency, and technology is the primary cause. Never before have we had to deal with receiving so much information continuously and being expected to respond instantly.

To make the most of our mental energy it's important for us to feel empowered to set boundaries and focus in an engaged way. Start by eliminating distractions and focusing on doing one task at a time. Try turning off notifications, placing your devices on Do Not Disturb, and quieting your mind. In the long term, you'll start to discover that completing the task at hand takes less time than fumbling through a range of projects while attempting to multitask.

Purpose (the force)

A sense of meaning and purpose feeds passion, tenacity, and dedication, which can give us the drive to take action in all facets of our lives. This strength frequently results from devoting oneself to something bigger than oneself. By taking the time to connect with what lights up our human spirit, we fuel ourselves in ways that can often override physical limitations.

Identify the values driving you forward. What are your bigger-than-self goals, and how are you connecting to them day-to-day? Create space to do the things you enjoy most. Devote time to explore what inspires you. Spend time in nature. Look up at the sky for a shift in perspective.

Exercise

In the following exercise, we'll assess our energy in each dimension and help identify the specifics of how we can aid each area. Start by checking off all the boxes that currently apply to you. In the second table, you'll be given space to identify your main energy drains and brainstorm ideas for renewal.

Physical	Emotional
☐ I have trouble sleeping for a solid seven hours and usually wake up tired.	☐ I frequently feel irritable, impatient, or anxious—especially if life feels demanding.
☐ It's hard for me to plan my meals, and I usually end up settling for something unhealthy.	☐ I don't spend enough time with my family and loved ones, and when I do, it's hard to be present.
☐ It's rare for me to exercise three or more times a week.	☐ It feels like there's too little time for the things I truly enjoy.
☐ I don't take breaks to recharge, normally eating on the go or powering through lunch.	☐ I don't take enough time to express gratitude for others or to reflect on my accomplishments and blessings.

Mental	Purpose
☐ I have trouble concentrating on a single task at a time, and I am easily distracted during the day.	☐ I don't feel connected to what I'm working on and rarely get to spend time on what I love and am good at.
☐ A large portion of my day is spent reacting to crises and demands rather than concentrating on activities with longer-term value.	☐ External pressures more frequently have an impact on my decisions than does a strong, distinct sense of my own purpose.

Energy Audit

☐ I don't give myself enough time for reflection, planning, and creative thinking.	☐ What I declare to be most essential in my life and how I really spend my time and energy differ significantly.
☐ I find myself thinking about work in my downtime and rarely remember to turn off my notifications.	☐ I don't invest enough time and energy in making a positive difference to others or to the world.

How many checkboxes did you check off? What areas are indicating that they need additional care? Identify and list below your sources of strain and renewal.

	Things causing depletion	What's helping with renewal	In what ways could you re-prioritize?
Physical Emotional
Mental
Purpose

In the coming weeks, aim to make one small change a week and see how your energy shifts.

Sources

Schwartz, T., & Gomes, J. (2010). The way we're working isn't working : how intense focus and frequent renewal fuel great performance. Free Press.

Loehr, J. E., & Schwartz, T. (2008).The power of full engagement. Shubhi. the human era @ work Findings from The Energy Project and Harvard Business Review. (2014). http://uli.org/wp-content/uploads/ULI-Documents/The-Human-Era-at-Work.pdf

Spilner, M. (2019, June 12). For a new view of the world: Sky walk. Prevention. https://www.prevention.com/fitness/fitness-tips/a20464437/reduce-stress-with-sky-walkin/

Daily Check-In Journal

Purpose

The purpose of this document is to introduce the benefits of a daily journaling practice and reflective self check-in.

Introduction

Developing a regular practice of self-reflection allows us to cultivate mindful awareness of the patterns in our lives, the direction we're heading, and how we'd like to align our actions. Writing about our experiences has been shown to improve mental and physical well-being by encouraging self-disclosure we may not give ourselves the opportunity to express elsewhere. In doing so, we lighten our emotional load and make room for greater mental clarity.

A daily check-in with ourselves can help us have a more intrinsic, hands-on approach to the day and life we want to create for ourselves. Having this level of engagement and autonomy over our lives can aid in detecting and mitigating feelings of burnout before they lead to negative consequences.

Example Questions for Daily Reflection

In this section, you will find targeted self-reflection prompts that you may find fruitful at different points in your day. As you read them, consider which one(s) resonate with you the most and how you might remember to ask yourself such questions on a daily basis.

Morning

- What am I grateful for?
- How am I feeling right now?
- How do I want to feel today? What choices can I make to align with that?

Midday

- What's going right today?
- What could make today better?
- How can I prioritize peace?

Daily Check-In Journal

Night

- What am I proud of? How did I challenge myself today?
- How did I connect with others/my community today?
- What am I excited for in the future that fuels my present?

Tips for Success

- Some days journaling is better than no days journaling, deconstruct the judgment around missing a check in and allow yourself to pick it up whenever it feels right.
- Make it personal, find a journal that speaks to you and is something that makes you excited to write in.
- Keep it simple, start with one question or time of day that feels accessible, and build from there.
- Make it a part of a routine, set a specific time to reflect on your day and intentions.

Sources

Davis, T. (n.d.). Daily Journaling: Prompts, Ideas, Questions, and Topics - The Berkeley Well-Being Institute. The Berkeley Well-Being Institute; The Berkeley Well-Being Institute. https://www.berkeleywellbeing.com/daily-journaling.html

The Art of Journaling: How To Start Journaling, Benefits of Journaling, and More. (2020, January 31). Daily Stoic; The Daily Stoic.https://dailystoic.com/journaling/

Pennebaker, J. W. (1997).Writing about emotionalexperiences as a therapeutic process. Psychological science,8(3), 162-166.

LISTEN

A Self-Massage Class

A masterclass to open the doorway to your sovereignty. Stop doubting yourself and get in touch with the wisdom of your body. Feel your truth and take aligned action from that foundation.

$25

THE WRITING PROMPT

Ho'oponopono Prayer

I'M SORRY
PLEASE FORGIVE ME
THANK YOU
I LOVE YOU

Write a letter to your body in the format of the prayer, forgive yourself, & commit to honoring its wisdom.

HOSTED BY JHINNA SALINAS

Embodied Magic

7 activities to harness your magic

Excercises compiled by Jhinna Salinas

@yojhinna

First things first.....

Welcome loves!

This workbook is for those that feel the magic in their veins but aren't seeing the spark in their lives. For the dreamers, the seekers, but most importantly, the believers.

In the following pages of this book you'll find 7 activities ideally done over 7 consecutive days to help you take inventory of your life and align with the energy of the life of your dreams.

When we harmonize our body, mind, and heart we're able to unleash the creative power within us. This is your subtle magic, this is something you can tap into at any point.

The more consistently you consciously direct your energy the more you're able to harness the infinite possibilites that lie before and within you.

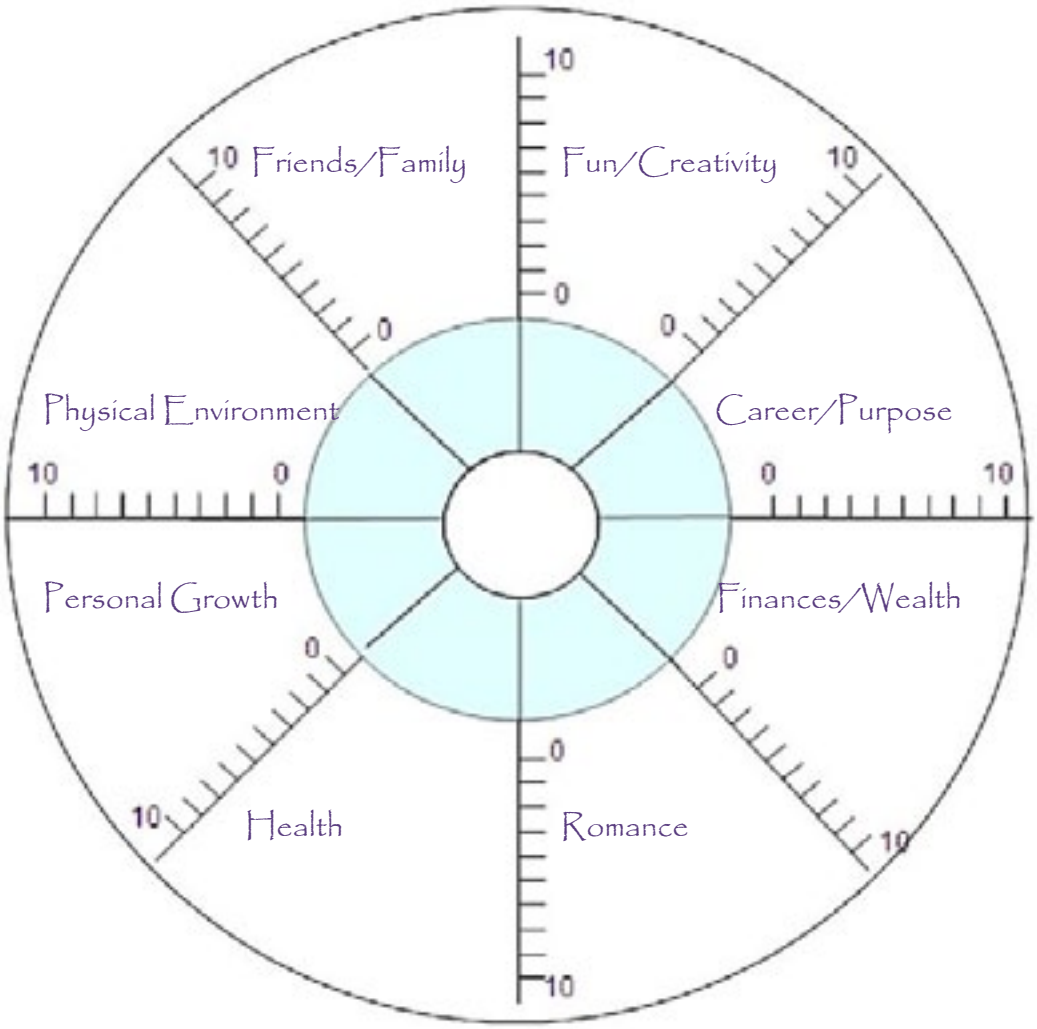

Through this process you will cultivate awareness of your invulnirability.

Content

Wheel of Life.....	Page 4
A Day in the Life.....	Page 5
Redefining Your Beliefs.....	Page 6
Directing Your Energy.....	Page 7
What's Your Superpower.....	Page 8
Flowing From the Heart.....	Page 9
Transmuting the Resistance.....	Page 10
Integration.....	Page 11
About Jhinna.....	Page 12

Wheel of Life

Go through and grade yourself, how do you feel like you're measuring up in each area of your life? In order to get to where we want to go we must take a look at where we are. This will allow us to better direct our energy.

After grading yourself, acknowledge your top 2 strengths and take a look at your top 2 areas of growth. What emotions do you feel around your strengths and around your weaknesses? Write 3 emotions down for each one. Throughout the day notice your thoughts emotions and actions in each of these areas.

What can you do today to activate your ideal emotions in each area?

A Day in the Life

The life of your dreams begins with a day

The likelihood of living the life of our dreams increases when we invest time in designing it. Studies show that the same areas of our brain light up at different intensities whether we're observing/visualizing or performing a physical task. You're going to use the power of visualization to harness your magic.

Take 10 minutes today to peer into your perfect average day. How would it look; taste it, feel it, smell it, write out every detail.

What would a normal day in your ideal like look like? From what you have for breakfast, who you spend the most time, to what your home looks like, and your last activity before bed is, envision it all. See it in your mind's eye. For the next week, at least, visualize this day for a minimum of 5 minutes.

Doing this practice you'll activate the neural pathways linked with your peak state and your subconscious mind with your end result. This will give your brain an equation to solve. Your brain will start using its problem solving skills to achieve this reality.

Redefining Your Beliefs

We are constantly in dialougue with the universe, telling it our hopes and dreams, fears and hesitations. Except the universe doesnt communicate in the the way we do, it doesnt distinguish between our likes and dislikes.

"Energy flows where attention goes"

The universe communicates like that. Today we're going to focus on the beliefs and thought patterns that are guiding our manifestation.

Take a look at the area you'd like to work on transforming first. What do you see? Our physical manifestations are a reflection of our beliefs and internal dialogue. Write what you see in this area for 2 minutes; simple statements of what you see and feel.

Ex.: I see that money is hard to acquire.

Go through and scratch out see/feel for believe. Once you have a list of 10-15 statements you're going to go through and turn them around to postive affirmations.

Ex: Money flows to me easily.

Once you have your list of affirmations, record yourself saying them and listen to it 2x a day for the next week or two.

Pick a belief that resonates with you the most. Give yourself 3 instances where that has belief has already proved to be supported in your life.

Directing Your Energy

Taking back your power

How often are you consciously direct your energy?
Look at the 3 top emotions you currently feel in the area you chose to transform.

What would you like it to look like 6 months from now? What are the 3 emotions you'd like to feel in this area?

Choose 5 times to check in throughout the day.
Upon waking up – After breakfast – Pre-lunch – After Dinner – Before Bed

Tune into your emotions, your thoughts, and actions.Are they holding the vibration of your ideal manifestation of this area?

Align yourself with that energy.

Ask yourself "what can I do now to feel more _____?" (emotion your ideal self feels) Do that, direct your energy there.

What's Your Superpower?

Harness your strengths

Do you celebrate your strengths?
It's so easy for us to get caught up in what we feel we should be doing better instead of focusing on our strengths and how we can develop them. Remember, where our attention goes, our energy flows. Today we are going to look at our strength, bring our attention there, so we can increase the prevalance of it in our lives.

What is your unique way of improving the world around you?

Meet with a partner; tell them your superpower. Share what you feel you're really good at, what is it you're wanting to share with the world? Share it for about a minute and a half, at the end of that your partner will turn around and share what they see in you. They'll acknowledge what's within you that supports this and why you're a perfect fit for this superpower.

Bask in your strength. How can you share it with the world today?

Flowing From the Heart

Follow your excitement, do it all with love

Tapping into your playful nature

Today is all about expressing yourself in ways that align with your highest excitement. In this process we'll harmonize the trinity; heart, mind, and body.

Connecting our mind with our heart and aligning our body, our actions, with our truest desires.

Set out 3 hours today to express your highest excitement; preferably a straight 3 hour block but feel free to split it up. The first 10min will be spent unifying your heart, body, and mind. The first 5 minutes consciously direct your breath; inhale for 4, hold for 4, exhale for 4, hold for 4. The next 5 minutes put on music you enjoy, move/stretch/flow in your body however you wish.

Let go of judgment, fill yourself up with love and acceptance for whatever fuels your heart. Ask yourself, what would be most exciting for me to do right now? Go out and do them – for 3 hours today.

If you feel like taking a nap, don't' judge yourself, same if you feel like doing a crossword puzzle, don't judge, just follow your excitement.

Transmute the Resistance

Facing your fears head on

What is the biggest fear based story holding you back from being able to interact and express yourself how you really want to?
Sit with this story as you follow the journaling prompts. Allow yourself to really feel the fear, let your emotions come up, this is how we transmute them.

In what ways is this story keeping your from stepping into your role as a leader? How do you compare yourself to others? How do you judge yourself and your work? When you think about this fear and how it is holding you back, how does it make you feel. List some emotions. Describe it. Does this fear have color? A texture? Smell or sensation? Do you feel it in your body somewhere? How does it show up, is it constricting, dense, chaotic? Really give it shape, identify the fear.

This fear of ____ is holding you hostage and keeping you from living your best life, not only that but it also causes you emotional and physical discomfort. Sit with it. Really let yourself feel the fear.Allow all the uncomfortable emotions to come up, for at least 90 seconds.

Now, SHAKE IT OFF!!
Seriously, start with your hands, arms, shake your whole body and rid yourself of this fear.

Finish the sentence:

Releasing my fear gives me the freedom to....

Write this statement everywhere, save it as your phone screen, have it somewhere you see often.

Integration

Uniting the puzzle pieces

Over the last week you've taken a look at your beliefs, fears, super-powers, the things that make us happy, & how you express in your fullest potential. You've laid out new beliefs as a foundation to grow from and envisioned your ideal day. You have the tools to create the life you dream of.

Take a look at the area you've been working on this week. Redo the wheel of life exercise, has your wheel shifted?

List 3 things you can do now in your fullest authentic expression to cultivate this area. These are the things that your ideal self would do. You are that ideal self, now. Move from that space. Go out and do these things, live your truth, act from the part of you that is fearless, bold, and magical.

Integrate your new found insights.
Use your superpowers, find your strength within, and share it with the world.